Adenium Living Advocacy Policy

Advocacy is acting, speaking or writing to promote and protect the human rights and welfare of a vulnerable person or group of people. Examples of vulnerable people include Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, children and their families, refugees, the elderly, the LGBTQIA community, people who are homeless or at risk of homelessness, and people with disability. The Department of Social Services funds the National Disability Advocacy Program (NDAP) which ensures there is no cost for participants or service providers to access advocacy services.

Types of advocacies include:

- individual advocacy—a one-on-one advocacy aimed to prevent or address instances of discrimination or abuse to a person with disability
- systemic advocacy—advocacy to influence or secure long-term changes to ensure the collective rights and interests of people with disability
- family advocacy—when a parent or family member advocates with and on behalf of a family member with disability
- group advocacy—advocacy for a group of people with disability, such as a group of people living in shared accommodation
- citizen advocacy—where community volunteers advocate for a person with a disability over the long-term, supported by a citizen advocacy organisation
- legal advocacy—where a lawyer provides legal representation, pursues positive changes to legislation, or gives legal advice to people with disability about discrimination and human rights

Individual advocates can:

- provide direct advocacy on behalf of a person
- provide information and advice so a person can advocate for themselves (e.g. deal with a landlord, go to court, deal with police, get legal advice, negotiate deals, deal with problems at work or education, deal with guardianship and financial matters)
- connect a participant to relevant services e.g. solicitor
- help a participant work through problems
- help a participant make formal actions on matters e.g. assist to make a complaint with the anti-discrimination board

Advocates do not:

- provide counselling
- make decisions for another person
- provide mediation
- provide case management

Scope

This applies to all services at all sites and all representatives involved in providing services including key management personnel, full time workers, part time workers, casual workers, contractors and volunteers.

Supporting Policy Directives

Advocacy commitment

Upon commencing services, new participants are informed of the role of advocates, their right to use advocates and advocacy services, and how to contact and involve advocacy agencies

Participants are supported by Adenium Living if they choose to self-advocate, change advocates, or withdraw their authority for an advocate.

If a participant needs an advocate and a family or carer cannot provide it, we will attempt to introduce an advocate chosen by the participant.

If a participant requests one of our workers to be an advocate, their authority to act is recorded along with the issues important to the participant and their goals.

We will work with the advocate chosen by a participant and involve the advocate in all areas of the participant's service planning and decision making .

Whenever a participant is assisted by an advocate, we will document this
